Gala Freedom Festival Hits Provo

Counselor Urges Patriotism

President N. Eldon Tanner, counselor in the first presidency of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, urged the patriotic service of Provo's Freedom Festival

President Tanner exhorted the present, particularly Church members, to take an active part in their freedoms.

"There is a great threat facing us," he remarked. "We must not forget that constant war is the price of freedom." President Tanner warned that freedoms are being tested on every side. Even the existence is threatened

It is important for us as Americans, particularly those in education, to appreciate our freedoms because we have them all. President Tanner said, "We take these blessings for granted, as we simply because we have them."

President Tanner urged the people to remember that many freedoms, such as freedom of religion, worship, vocation, the right to own property and travel and the right to a fair and impartial trial "simply are not available in a lot of other countries."

Church leader also warned the people of the United States to live in righteousness and maintain their freedom.

President Tanner cited the Jaredite civilization that was swept off the American continents because of wickedness. He added that "We make the promise that the people of this land will be free—if they love Jesus Christ."

Journalist Attacks News Suppression

By Jim Hunt
Managing Editor

Dr. Curtis D. MacDougall, visiting professor in communications, expressed a great concern over the status of freedom of the press in America in the most recent forum assembly, and blamed newspaper management as well as government suppression of information.

He assailed what he called a "Big Brother knows best attitude" in the country. "A few men at the top have all the information, and we have to trust them," was his description of the trend.

Dr. MacDougall said such an attitude aided such men as Hitler, Mussolini and Stalin.

Dr. MacDougall attacked the policy of the government of the United States to classify information and withhold facts "in the public interest and to protect national security."

"There is no important foreign development about which we, the people of the United States, have been informed starting with the U-2 incident in May, 1960," he charged.

At that time, a U.S. pilot named Gary Powers was captured by the Soviet Union making a reconnaissance espionage flight.

"Our government made up stories for several days," Dr. MacDougall said. "Then (Soviet Premier Nikita S.) Khrushchev produced pictures, the plane, and finally Powers: I still wonder how that plane was shot down with the pilot alive."

Largest July 4th Fete Sets Regatta, Fireworks

Provo becomes Freedom City, USA, this week as the annual Provo Freedom Festival, the largest Fourth of July celebration in the U.S., monopolizes the town all week.

Leach Ties For 2nd In Golf Tilt

Freshman Ray Leach tied for second place in the NCAA golf championships at Colorado Springs, Colo., to lead BYU to a tie for third place nationally.

Leach, who led at the halfway mark in the tournament, finished with a 301 on rounds of 74-69-81-77. Difficult winds raised all the participants' scores, although Leach refused to use the weather as an excuse for losing his four stroke lead.

Bob Clark of California State in Los Angeles won at 298. His final round was a 74.

Houston won the team championship for the 11th time with a 1,223 total. Its best golfer, Dave Shuster, had been disqualified, but the team rallied to grab the title.

Wake Forest, leader going into the final round, finished second at 1,232. BYU and Arizona State shot 1,240's.

LDS Activities, Inc., an organization of the six Oregon-Provo stakes of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, sponsors the observation of the holiday as a welfare project. Over 100,000 tourists are expected to visit the celebration. LaVorn G. Sparks is the general chairman. He and his assistants have planned numerous events for the week.

Sunday night, the celebration began with a special patriotic program in the Smith Fieldhouse at BYU featuring a combined chorus of elementary school children, the local patriotic speech contest winner and a main address by N. Eldon Tanner, second counselor in the first presidency of the Church.

Wednesday, there will be a horse show and an evening of western fun under the auspices of Ted Brinkerhoff at the BYU Rodeo Grounds starting at 7 p.m. One of the highlights of the evening is a greased pig scramble. Also on Wednesday, the Lou Melendez City of Fun Carnival will set upon East Center Street, where it will remain through Friday.

The City-County building lawn will house a bazaar the same three days.

The children's parade Thursday will precede Friday's 9:30 a.m. grand parade, which will move from the Smith Fieldhouse parking lot to Eighth East and Center Street.

Devotional Assembly Features Elder Young

Elder S. Dilworth Young of the First Council of the Seventy of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints will deliver today's Devotional address at 10 a.m. in the De Jong Concert Hall of the Harris Fine Arts Center.

Elder Young has held his current position since May, 1945. From May, 1947 until April, 1951, he also served as president of the New England Mission.

Elder Young was a scout executive until his call to become a General Authority of the Church. He was scout executive for the Ogden Area Council, Boy Scouts of America, for 22 years before joining the First Council of the Seventy.

Law
And Order

Ernest L. Wilkinson

Editor's Note: This is the transcript of President Wilkinson's recent broadcast for the Mansion Forum. The President is an outspoken proponent of the law and order. In addition to his duties as a president of the largest church-sponsored university in the country, Dr. Wilkinson is also a very prominent lawyer.

QUESTION NO. 1: What, in your opinion, is the genesis of the present campus disturbances and rioting?

In my judgment the present campus disturbances and disorders are an outgrowth of general disrespect for law and order in this country and the failure of government officials to enforce the law. When students find that the law is not enforced in other areas they are inclined to disregard it as it applies to them.

I have a very firm conviction, for instance, that the seeds of our present rash of civil disobedience were sown in Michigan, in the 30's when Governor Murphy permitted strikers to occupy the buildings of the employers in sit-down strikes and refused to eject them. To my mind, was the beginning in our generation of our wholesale disrespect for law.

Either as a result of or in spite of his encouragement of civil disobedience, Murphy was rewarded by President Franklin Delano Roosevelt with an appointment to the office of Attorney General, where by inaction he could further encourage disobedience to law. Finally, he was further rewarded by being made a Justice of the United States Supreme Court, although no one ever thought of his being a legal scholar. His voting record on the Court especially in the field of labor relations is well known and I expect with this kind of a background. You cannot condone violation of law in one area without it spreading to another.

QUESTION NO. 2: Doctor Wilkinson, so far at least, you have been spared the ordeal of "sit-in" demonstrations at Brigham Young University. How do you account for this good fortune?

There are several reasons for this.

In the first place, most of our students come from homes where they have been subject to certain standards of discipline. Not that they have escaped mistreatment, but the permissive attitude of most parents today, for this permissive philosophy has invaded all parts of the country, but at least they have been given a basic training in their responsibility as citizens. They have respect for their parents, for their Government, and for the educational institutions which they attend.

In the second place, our student body is a little more mature than most undergraduate student bodies. Enrolled among our students, for instance, are 6,000 returned missionaries of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints—young men and women who have given two years of their lives without compensation to teaching the Gospel of Jesus Christ all over the world. As a part of that missionary work they have carried to the ends of the earth the message of America and the freedoms and responsibilities of the Free World. Some of these returned missionaries have themselves either been the object of riots or have seen riots in Japan, South America and other places. In particular some of them have seen student riots in universities in South America which have practically destroyed those educational institutions. Knowing that this disorder accomplishes nothing constructive, they are not inclined to riot.

In the third place, at the beginning of each school year I write a letter to the parents of every student and address the entire student body as soon as they are assembled, in which I tell them that attendance at Brigham Young University is a privilege, not a right. I spell out what the rules of conduct of the institution are, and inform them that if they are not expected to conform to its rules and one of those rules is that there are to be no physical disturbances or riots. If they don't want to conform they can go to the Treasury's Office immediately and get their tuition back. Last year, out of 23,000 students, two asked for a return of their tuition. We were happy to do that.

May I add that, in my judgment, organized society requires that its citizens conform to the rules of that society, and that a university administrator should be employing it. I think it's a privilege and not a right to attend any university in this country.

QUESTION NO. 3: President Nixon has said that "expulsion" is the primary instrument of university discipline and he thinks that a university administrator should be employing it. Nevertheless, very few college presidents have done so. Do you think that expulsion of the offending students would be a proper and effective remedy for this epidemic of "push-ins" and "sit-ins" on our campuses?

The answer to this question is yes. I think that any student who engages in disturbances that threaten the proper functioning of the university, or rioting in any way should be suspended. Indeed, our students are told each year that should they participate in disturbances, expulsion would automatically follow, and they know that we mean it.

I will go further than that and state in my judgment any student who would attempt to destroy the facilities or buildings of an educational institution created by our Government or made possible by philanthropy under our system of free enterprise, or who, by any revolutionary tactics, would attempt to destroy our Government which gives our students more opportunities than they could obtain in any other nation in the world, should have his revolutionary dreams fulfilled by having his citizenship revoked and, like Philip Nolan, become a man without a country.

I would permit these students, after they have duly repented, and discovered the evils of their ways, to again apply for admission to the country which offers them the greatest opportunities in the world. By that time they might appreciate its blessings.

But you always taught me not to get involved.
Mother!

QUESTION NO. 4: Do you think it's proper for a university president to call the police in the event of a disturbance or riot, or should the university act to handle the matter itself?

In my judgment, Theodore Roosevelt stated the philosophy which I think we should follow. He stated that no man is either below or above the law. As applied to a university this means, in my judgment, that no student should be condoned on our campuses; that we should not make them a sanctuary or asylum where officers of the law cannot get to them. Both university officials and law officials have the responsibility for maintaining law and order on our campuses.

Indeed, I think that the first duty of any citizen is to report to proper police authorities any infraction of the law, and believing in that, I think that a university president who refuses to call in the police when crimes are being committed on his campus is violating his first duty as a citizen. University students, of all people, should be the first to observe the law and it should be understood that breaches of the peace, criminal trespass, destruction of property and arson are criminal violations of law.

QUESTION NO. 5: How much warning do you think should be given students before they are subject to police action?

I am aware that Father Hesburg has suggested that they ought to be given 15 minutes for meditation, and that Chancellor Mitchell has said that they ought to be given just five minutes to disband and to desist from injuring any university property. In my judgment, they ought to meditate before they even start. I think the moment they engage in unlawful acts they are, like other citizens, subject to police action without any warning.

QUESTION NO. 6: Doctor Wilkinson, in its complimentary editorial to which I have referred, the TRUNE says that the students at Brigham Young "seem to be more interested in getting a good education than in reforming everything in sight." Is that a true appraisal and, if so, how have your students managed to escape the winds of change that seem to be sweeping the campuses of the country?

I am sure the students on our campus are not impervious to the winds of change. They know what's going on on many of the campuses in the country, but as distinguished from the revolutionists on other campuses, who fortunately constitute only a small percentage of the students on those campuses, the students of Brigham Young University:

1. First of all realize that their elders have some wisdom, and that their parents support the policies and standards of the institution which they attend.

2. They realize that social reform must start with the individual; that the true Christian must have a Christian attitude and spirit in his heart; that in the words of the Master they should love their neighbors as themselves; they should pray for their enemies, and do good to those who would spitefully use and persecute them. With that philosophy they realize that many of the reforms sought by the revolutionists cannot successfully be imposed by law.

3. They do not believe in Marxism or communism. That is repugnant to their Christian belief as taught by the Church which maintains the university. They know that it is repugnant to our Republican form of Government and what they believe is the divine Constitution of the United States.

4. They realize that the Ten Commandments and Sermon on the Mount are still the proper standards for conduct. They do not believe that young men and women in universities should have free access to each other's living quarters all hours of the day and night. They do not believe, as requested at one university, that women should be permitted to stay up all night and drink as much as they want. They do not believe in free love. In other words, they do not believe in the demands made on most campuses by the rioters of the day.

5. Finally, they appreciate that attendance at the Brigham Young University is their opportunity to obtain an education so they can be self-supporting citizens and of service to their fellowmen. They want to take advantage of that opportunity. They know that if they rebel and are suspended from Brigham Young University, they will have forfeited that opportunity, and that with their suspension on their scholastic record, they may not be admitted to another institution of higher learning.

Periscope . . .

Kids
by Jerry Garrett

Have you had any problem getting an elevator in the Wilkinson Center lately? When you finally do obtain elevator service, do you sense that you have been mistakenly caught a ride with a cattle wagon? As you sit at each floor along the way, are your thoughts taken up by Union Stockyards in Chicago?

Since the return of most of us "big college kids" to Summer School, there have been scores of teenyboppers sharing our camp with us. Here under the guise of drama workshops, forensic workshops, leadership workshops, sports adventures, etc., students know them better as the campus hornet's nest.

Elevators are often out of service, ridiculously slow, an overloaded or piloted by young visgoths who take you where you want to go eventually. You may be pummeled or upended by a bunch of kids who use the principles on their imaginative obstacle courses. You will probably merely have your back knocked out of your hands to be scattered on the ground. All it takes to mind a statement by W.C. Fields in which he remarks that "anyone who hates children and dogs can't be bad."

It has been the understanding of many that the children were to be under some sort of responsible supervision. In most cases, this supervision has been without result.

The other day, a glass cover over an announcement board fell victim to a rowdy band of young fellows playing tag on the main floor of the Wilkinson Center. Other objects of value have been transformed into debris in someone's ledger book. The task of maintenance workers as they have been magnified in the wake of this assault.

If the programs involved have been under-staffed or if direction fell inadequate for their enormous task, perhaps more time for summer workshops should be re-evaluated before it is renewed next year.

It will be interesting to see how we, the Daily Universe staff, will control the high school journalist's workshop (which will be working with us) scheduled to hit campus late in July.

While we are seemingly critical now, how much so will we be then?

I suggest that any one of them five reasons is generally impervious enough to dissuade them from their behavior, and that their real disturbance or in rioting.

QUESTION NO. 7: Doctor Wilkinson, much of the violence, dissent on many of our campuses, appears to be directed not just at the conduct of the involved university, but at the entire business, social and political order of our country. What, in your opinion, is responsible for this revolutionary attitude now being taken by these students?

In my opinion, there are a number of causes which are responsible for the revolutionary attitude now being taken by students.

In the first place, unfortunately because of the permissive attitude in their homes, many have no belief in God and the divine order.

NICK HORN

President Appointed

Recently appointed as Summer President of the Associated Students of Brigham Young University is Nick Horn, a senior majoring in political science.

Horn is a transfer student from Utah State College where he was active in student government and named "Who's Who Among Students (American Junior Colleges)." At Utah State, he was an honor student and is now affiliated with Phi Kappa Alpha honorary fraternity. Following his summer term of office, Horn will continue activity in student government during the 1969-70 school year functioning as Attorney General and Executive Assistant to the BYU President.

Nick's summer president is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Horn of Ogden, Utah.

Warning Sounded . . .

Wilkinson

Freedom Of Press In Danger

Freedom of the press is in great danger in America.

That was the warning sounded in forum assembly Thursday by Dr. Curtis MacDougall, professor of journalism at Northwestern University and visiting professor at BYU.

"It is unfair to hang the credibility gap on President Johnson," Dr. MacDougall said. "There has been plenty of gap before and since."

He asserted one of the greatest blows to freedom of information was an order by President Truman instructing all government departments to classify news, and the news organizations have been fighting the effects of the order ever since.

"For 20 years the journalists of this country have been on the side of the angels fighting against the control of the news," the famous journalism educator declared. "In that time there hasn't been a critical situation in our foreign relations on which we have been adequately informed."

He cited as examples the U-2 spy plane incident in which the Eisenhower government kept silent even though the Russians had the evidence; the hushed-up Bay of Pigs invasion fiasco and the Cuban missile crisis which was really a show of force to prevent another such incident; the occupation of the Dominican Republic by American forces, and the Vietnam War.

He deplored the Chicago situation during the Democratic convention in which 80 newsmen were beaten up and their equipment was smashed.

The speaker explained that freedom of the press as set up by the nation's Founding Fathers was not an end in itself, but a means to an end—a means for people to govern themselves if they have the proper information.

"Freedom of the Press does not necessarily mean a good press," he asserted, "but it does mean that everyone has access to information that can make American democracy work. And you can't blame the press for public ignorance. It is doing its best to inform."

of the universe. Paralleling that, in the fact that many of them do not accept the Judeo-Christian moral code. They do not understand that righteousness exalteth a nation, and that iniquity destroyeth it.

Next, it is now definitely established that many of the leaders of these riots (and my guess is most of them) are hard-core communists. It is now well known that many of these student communist leaders travel from one campus to another, inciting these riots.

Another reason is that many of the dissident students have the mistaken belief, nurtured may I say by certain politicians of both parties, that our country owes them a living or a college education.

Many of these students also have the false philosophy that things can be changed overnight by legislation or the power of the state. They forget what the late Woodrow Wilson once said—namely, that the things that have made America great have been those things which America has done of its own volition and not under any compulsion of law. In this respect, we have largely abandoned the philosophy of our Constitutional Fathers that while we have a duty to support our Government, the Government has no duty to support us. This was the philosophy of every President until the advent of Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

Finally, the great mass of students who participate in these riots are followers and not leaders. At their impressionable age many of them are like ships without a rudder.

Over all, I think the answer to the student riots on our campuses is in administrators defining specifically what the rules are, and then enforcing those rules, both by expulsion of students who riot and by assisting in their prosecution in the courts.

I should further add that I think universities themselves should start thinking about some new admission requirements for students.

At the beginning of the present century, emphasis for admission to our universities was placed primarily upon character. Ministers and priests recommended young men and women of character for admission to universities.

By the 1920's and 1930's, the emphasis had shifted to that of leadership. Universities were after those students who, in their high school years, had shown that they had qualities of leadership.

At the present time, and in my judgment this is unfortunate, the emphasis is entirely on scholarship.

I submit that a young man of character and leadership is much more important to our society than a genius who is an anarchist. I therefore submit that universities should devise some formula whereby admissions officers think not only in terms of scholarship, but also in terms of character and good citizenship. We are attempting to do that at the Brigham Young University.

Real You' Concept . . .

Slimming With Thinderella

By Jan Pitcher
Universe Staff Writer

A near-old girl unhappy with her weight-losing camps attended the Thinderella program, part of this summer's South Academy for Girls.

The Waldorf of Oklahoma had weight camps in the East last past few summers. The girls were hidden in the mountains, far away from people's temptation to nibble.

Weight was lost, but was regained after returning. Miss Waldorf is campus Thinderella, and 55 other girls, from age 10 to 20, are learning a new

"total you" concept in the art of slimming.

During their six-week stay at BYU, they are dieting, exercising, and beginning to know and understand themselves through personal and group therapy.

Bonnie Allen, a retired Provo doctor is supervising the extensive diet of a non-fat breakfast and lunch, and Metcalfe dinner. The average weight loss on this type of program is 30 pounds.

To keep the poundage off, they are learning "facts about nutrition and what really makes them overweight," and how to stop "thinking" food.

They are discovering the "magic of motivation and self-control." Classes in hair styling, complexion care, posture, carriage, personality, religion, charm, and clothes selection, design and construction are also expanding the girls' interest and awareness in themselves.

The young-ladies have been on campus since June 16, and are generally excited and enthusiastic about the program—except perhaps for the second day, when they are weighed, measured, and photographed in swimming suits.

"They are brave girls with lots of gumption," described Dennis Lowe of Special Courses and Conferences.

And they just might show that dieting, like most everything else, has become academic, and has moved from summer camp to campus.

Layouts For 'Dark Swans' Tonight

for "Dark Swans," a play written and directed by Nielson, begin today in the Schaffner Fine Arts Center at 6 p.m. Additional tryouts will be held from 6 to 9 p.m. in the Margetts Arena Theater. Nielson said of the production, "Dark Swans," the story of the "dark you" is a tale that reveals the "order of earth and the positions for '20 and five technicians. The production will rehearse through the end of July and perform in the Margetts Arena Theater July 31, August 1 and 2.

Nielson is doing the play as partial fulfillment of his University Scholars' Project which is under the joint supervision of the Honors Program, the Department of English, and the Department of Speech and Dramatic Arts.

Nielson said that the bulletin board outside the office of the Dramatic Arts Dept. has further information on the play and tryouts, including brief descriptions of the characters and specific times for auditions.

Activity Cards Must Have Attached Photo

Many students are having problems using their activity cards for on-campus services because they do not have an identification photo.

J. Elliott Cameron, dean of students, stated, "In order for the activity card to be valid it must have an identification photo attached." He commented further that many students are having trouble cashing checks and checking out books from the library.

Identification photos are taken by the Photo Studio in 116 Wilkinson Center each Tuesday and Friday afternoon from noon to 5 p.m. A fee of $1 is charged for the laminated color photograph.

Students need not make an appointment to have the picture taken. Only a few minutes of the student's time are needed and will save much inconvenience later.

Astros Staff Tops In NL

Houston (AP)—Preston Gomez says Houston Astros pitchers are the best arms in the National League.

Statistics, at least for the past week-and-a-half, tend to back up the San Diego manager's opinion.

Gomez' comments came as Houston had completed a five-game sweep over his Padres, including shutouts in the first two.

Astros pitchers Larry Dierker, Denny Lemaster, Tom Griffin, Don Wilson, and Jim Ray allowed the Padres only four runs in five game series. They struck out 47 batters and walked only four of the five went the distance in recording victories.

"It's hard to believe in pitching we've seen in this series Gomez said after the fifth game the set.

"We've lost five straight here and I've got to believe it's not bad considering the arms we've looked at. The Dodgers (Duane Drysdale and Claude Osteen) have more experience but as far as the best team, I think you've seen them right here in Houston.

"Really, I mean it. Look Dierker. He's right at the point establishing himself as one of the league's top pitchers. Wilson has tremendous arm."

Houston pitching, bolstered some fine hitting, has maintained its pace. The club was on ten-game victory streak through Friday night's games.

News of Note . . .

Deer, Cougar Scarce

By Bruno Vassili
Universe Sportswriter
The weekly newsletters from the Utah Fish and Game Commission contain some interesting information concerning last year's big game bird harvest. New deer and cougar hunting seasons are also discussed.

The upland game bird hunters said one of the best seasons occurred in 1968 as increased quail were reported for all upland game birds except the quail dove. The hunters brought home 3,000 birds while the take was at 32,000 forest grouse in 1968. Some 90,000 pheasant were also killed and harvested 297,700 birds. The sage hen harvest was 11,100 and the take was over 28,400. The prairie partridge showed a decrease over last season as 10 were bagged. Mourning doves were about 207,900, though the upland game bird season will not open until late August. The quail, rabbit and squirrel and fish are sure to keep hunters happy.

DEER AND COUGAR
The depleted number of deer in the state, bear hunting is closed and will remain closed until through October 28. The bear season does open it for residents only. Anyone who hunt bear this fall will obtain a $1 bear tag to go to their deer, combination, or game license.

Cougar hunting will continue on a year-round basis but will also require a $1 tag for both residents and nonresidents, together with a regular license.

Although a book could be written about the bear and cougar in Utah, it all could be summed up by simply saying that they have now been reduced to the point where sheepmen seldom see them or even have trouble with them and the outdoorsmen may spend weeks in the woods without ever getting close to one.

This situation is very sad to say the least. We probably won't exterminate these two fine animals from Utah for a while yet, but that's not saying much. It's one thing to hunt rabbits or rockchucks in an area where they are overpopulated in relation to the food, farming habitat and so on, and it's something else to shoot at whatever moves, no matter where or what it is.

Female bears with cubs are not huntable in Utah. A little common sense and restraint will not wipe out all the fun but rather will ensure it for a long time to come.

All the blame should not be placed on the hunters. Maybe it's time to do something about the 40 or 50 professional government trappers in the state—the guys who are paid to get rid of predators—since the situation has changed.

Hot Bats Hot In Yukon Trip Winds Up 1-7

By Jim Hunt
Managing Editor
Using is the key to the game baseball. If the opposition is a team's strength, there is no way the team can win. With Glen Tuckett's baseball team while in Alaska for the 1968 Sun Tournament the converse of that is also true: if you can't beat other guys out, you can't

It was the first of three one-run losses on the tour. Another was to the Goldpanners, 8-7, before the Glacier Pilots of Anchorage hung the Cats with a 4-3 loss. The final game of the series was a 12-inning, 6-5 loss to the Pilots.

The win came against the Pilots in the seventh game of the trip, an 11-4 victory for freshman Greg Faux, Romney and Richard Fairbanks homered.

Cougars averaged a hefty ups per game in Alaska, but that the Cats' bats were the job of driving men but BYU lost seven of eight trips. American Doug Howard led the team with a .412 batting average which noised out Larry's .406. Long chipped in at a .360 and ex-footballer Terry 3 batted .316. As a team hit .286. The Cats, Northern Division champions of the Western Conference and WAC cup to national champion a State, found ways to lose despite the robust hitting. The most frustrating sport of things to come, the first contest on the trip, into the bottom of the inning, BYU had a ngly insurmountable 9-3 over the Alaska Goldpanners, from Fairbanks. Before the sun had not gone for the night, freshman Brad Olsen had been from the mound, Jeff had given up another hit, Alaskans had walked from d with a 10-9 victory.
